

Quiz

Why are occupational therapy practitioners (OTPs) concerned with occupational injustices?

- OTPs recognize the importance of occupations to facilitating health and well-being
- OTPs view engaging in occupations as a right
- Vision 2025 challenges us to maximize health, well-being, and quality of life for all people
- All of the above

Which of the following is an example of occupational deprivation?

- An older adult is not able to participate in a singing group due to COPD
- A skilled nursing facility resident is not able to Bingo due to COVID-19 restrictions at the facility where they reside
- A group home resident does not have a choice about what foods they eat at meals
- A home-bound adult is told they need to do exercises with theraband during PT sessions instead of going for a walk to check the mailbox for letters from their family
- Both A and B

Which of the following is an example of occupational marginalization?

- An older adult is not able to play the guitar because of arthritis in their hands
- A skilled nursing facility resident is not able to exercise by walking in the hallway at their facility due to the implementation of COVID-19 infection control procedures
- A group home resident is not allowed to choose to shower more frequently than twice per week
- A home-bound adult reports feeling bored due to only being able to watch television or read books instead of going to visit neighbors to cheer them up
- Both B and D

Which of the following is an example of occupational alienation?

- An older adult is not able to read due to changes in their vision
- A skilled nursing facility resident is not able to attend an appointment with a medical specialist because of a COVID-19 outbreak at the facility where they reside
- A group home resident is permitted to go on outings with other residents but only to locations chosen by the group home staff
- A home-bound adult is unable to visit their grandchildren, despite telling their caregiver that is the most important thing to them
- Both B and C

Which of the following is an important strategy OTPs can use to address occupational injustices at the level of individuals?

- Asking a client what occupations are meaningful for them
- Educating institutional decision-makers about how systemic factors impact the ability of individuals to engage in meaningful occupations
- Attending Hill Day and other advocacy activities
- Participating in research projects about occupational injustices
- All of the above