THE UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY

Supporting voice-hearers

Test a new resource

Do you work with people who hear voices?

We invite you to be part of a research study to help us evaluate a set of online resources to help mental health workers to support voice-hearers using an evidence-based voice hearing approach. The resources were co-designed by voice hearers and clinical experts. The research is being conducted by The University of Sydney.

You are eligible if you are a mental health worker (e.g., clinician, support worker peer worker, psychiatrist) who works with voice-hearers.

Participating in the study involves less than 3 hours of your time spread over an 8 week period. It includes you going through the online resources (2 hours) and doing three questionnaires (5-20 minutes each). You will be randomised to receive the resources immediately (after doing the first questionnaire) or in 4 weeks' time (after the doing the second questionnaire).
You will be able to continue to access the resources free of charge after you complete the study.

For more information or to volunteer for the study:

- Contact Dr Anne Honey at anne.honey@sydney.edu.au
- Read the Participant Information Statement available at the link below or the QR code

https://t.ly/eiDgc

This has been approved by the Human Research Ethics Committee (HREC) [APPROVAL # 2023/819]